DID GRUBER SHOOT WITTE? WIN THOSE SEASON TICKETS LEVY'S GRIP HOLDS GOOD.

The Dying Man Identifies Both and

The mystery over the shooting of Frank Witte in his apartments, 255 East Tenth street, yesterday, now seems to be partially cleared up. His wife, Hattie, and Philip Gruber, the boarder who save he was Witte's riend, were taken to Believue Hospital this morning, where they were identified by the injured man as having been in the apartments at the time he was shot.

Dr. Pinney says that the bullet entered the back of the neck, and after passing through under the muscles and grazing the jugular vein, fell out in the patient's mouth. He is in a very dangerous condition, and Dr. Pinney fears pneumonia may set in, thus aggravating the man's injuries.

"He was the only person present at the time, and had been standing inside the room near the door just a moment before the shooting."

Gruber attempted to argue with the wounded man, but was led away with the detectives. Both he and Mrs. Witte claim that all three were sitting at a table together in the kitchen. Witte suidenly got up and a moment after going into the sitting-room. That been shot.

He said he was bound to have that corpse before it leaves this city, and he feels that he will not uphold the dignity of his office if the proper examination into the death of Paul Merer, the murdered soapmaker of Copenhagen, is not made, and the proceedings duly recorded at the Coroners' office. Acting Collector Couch received a letter from Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Tichenor this merning, which instructed him to notify the Board of Health in case Consul Brachme did not take the corpse off his hands within three days.

The position of the Federal officials and the Danish Government, who appear to be working together to resist Coroner Levy's authority, is further complicated by the fact that if the Danish representative gets the barrel from Collector Erhardt he will have to keep it in town till April 25, when the next steamer sails for Copenhagen.

In this case Coroner Levy will have plenty of time to get in his fine work, and it may be that she body of the unfortunate scapmaker will find a final resting place in Potter's Field.

The Coroner and the Board of Health may find that it is a public nuisance and order it to be put where it can do no injury to the public health.

Deputy Gollector Burr said this morning:

Thomas Ferris, of 240 East Thirtieth street, Special Inspector of the Excise Board testified first.

"I was succ ally directed by the President of the Excise Board to ascertain if I could buy figuor at the restaurant of Mr. Campbell, Sasid be.

"I went to the market about 6 o'clock in the morning of April I.

"I went to the barkeeper and asked for a glass of whiskey, and was told to be seated. A glass of whiskey was brought me. I drank it, and then went to the cashier's desk where Mr. Campbell was; bought a clgar, and paid 20 cents for both articles."

"Were you served with anything to eat with the whiskey."

Mr. Campbell was; bought a cigar, and paid 20 cents for both articles.

Were you served with anything to eat with the whiskey?

"I was not."
In answer to other questions the witness told of a similar purchase of whiskey served without food last Fall.

At that time he went there under orders from the Excise Board, and he said that both violations of the terms of the license were reported by him.

In reply to defendant's counsel Ferris admitted that he might have done just what he did in Campbell's in either Delmontao's or the Cafe Savarin; that he could have eaten at the table where he sat, and that the proprietor would probably go to the extent of forcing the food down his throat. It was also brought out on the cross-examination of this witness that he had served on the police force for twenty years, being retired as disabled soon after the blizzard of the Spring of 1888.

Comptroller Myers pricked up his cars.

Do you receive a pension? asked he.

"Yes, sir; I carmed my pension."
"You'd take pay from three or four if you could, wouldn't you?" asked Mr. Eccleside.
"I would, sir."
The Comptroller made a note of these facts, and Mr. Ferrs was given to understand that the circumstances surrounding his obtaining a pension would be inquired into.

A bookie said this morning: "We have stonged because we don't want to be arrested. This with a knowing smile."

We can get all the news we want from the track. Do you simpose the oil-of-town bookmakers would get the news and we not get it? Not much. We'll all be at the oil stands shortly.

Strike was amicably settled this morning, the firm granting an increase of 15 per cent. In wages and recognition of the Union.

Vicient Work by German Socialiste.

Berlin, April 16.—The locomotive engine works of Johann Liebig & Co have been destroyed by dynamite, as an act of vengance on the part of Socialist workmen who were forbidden to attend May Day holiday celebrations.

The Socialists of Brannsberg, East Prussia, are rioting and robbing the markets of provisions, decaring that this is only the beginning of a general revolution.

of arrest for the "bookies" here, claiming that it was against the law of the State of New Jersey to bet on horse races. There was no truth in the rumor, however.

It was whispered that the Brillianteen colt was the good thing for the opening event, and he was made the favorite, with Minnet a strong second choice. As they ran first and second, the talent must have got the money.

Sorrento and Eric carried the money for the second event, but neither of them could do the trick. Ten Booker, at 12 to 1, came with a grand burst of speed at the finish and beat Eric by a head.

St. Paris was sent to the post the favorite in the great Long Island Stakes, and won in a good finish.

She was heavily backed, but could only finish seventh. Mr. Helmost, her owners, was present to witness the defeat.
